

The list of members of the Working Group on Information Integrity, Interoperability, and Media Diversity (WG-I3MD) is as follows:

1. Seán Ó Siochrú: Seán is a communication rights activist, having played a key role in the communication rights movement. He is with the Nexus Research Cooperative, in Ireland. In the WG, he represents the Global Digital Justice Forum, a global network working on digital justice.
2. Maria Luisa Stasi: A competition lawyer by background, Maria works at Article 19, leading its law and policy activities concerning digital markets, with a special focus on the protection of freedom of expression online.
3. Camila Leiti Contri: A lawyer by training, Camila is the Coordinator of the Telecommunication and Digital Rights Program at the Brazilian Institute of Consumer Protection (Idec),
4. Paulo José Lara: A sociologist, political scientist, and Master in Sociology of Culture at UNICAMP, Brazil, Paulo is Co-Executive Director of Article 19, Brazil and South America.
5. Parminder Jeet Singh: Parminder has been a co-executive Director of India-based NGO IT for Change for nearly two decades. In this WG, he represents the Just Net Coalition, a global coalition working for equity and social justice in a digital society.
6. Paul-Olivier Dehaye: Paul Olivier is an entrepreneur in the field of artificial intelligence, through his Swiss-based company Hestia.ai. A research mathematician, with a PhD from Stanford, Paul-Olivier played a key role in unearthing the Cambridge-Analytica scandal.
7. Lorenzo Vagas: Lorenzo is a communication for development specialist and researcher on citizens' media, and directs WACC's (World Association for Christian Communication) Communication for Social Change Program, which supports grassroots sustainable development initiatives in the Global South.
8. Sacha Meuter: A lawyer by training, Sacha works at the Foundation Hironnelle as a research coordinator and legal advisor. He specializes in the role of media in challenging and conflict zones, and its possibilities for promoting peace.
9. Tanya O'Carroll: Tanya co-founded Amnesty International's global technology and human rights program. Tanya now works as an independent advisor, strategist, and leader focused on tech accountability, human rights, and social justice. She also leads an initiative 'People vs Big Tech'.
- 10, Phet Sayo: Phet is the Executive Director of EngageMedia, an Asia-Pacific nonprofit promoting digital rights, and open and secure technology. He has earlier worked with IDRC, Canada, and UNDP.
11. Vibodh Parthasarathi: Vibodh is an Associate professor at the Centre for Culture, Media and Governance, Jamia Millia Islamia University, New Delhi. Vibodh has maintained a multidisciplinary interest in media theory, communication & development policy, and comparative media practice.

12. Rishab Bailey: A lawyer by training, Rishab has an advanced degree in Law and Digital Technologies. He works at the US nonprofit, Public Citizen, as the Research Director for the Digital Trade Alliance (DTA).

13. Lorraine Porciuncula: Lorraine is the Co-founder and Executive Director of the Datasphere Initiative, an international non-profit foundation with a mission to responsibly unlock the value of data for all. An economist, Lorraine has earlier worked at the OECD as a Strategic Advisor on digital policy issues.

14. Nicolo Zingales: Nicolo is a Professor of Law and Information Regulation, and Director of the E-commerce Center at FGV Rio Law. Nicolo is also affiliated with the Stanford Center for Internet and Society, the Tilburg Institute for Law, Technology and Society, the Tilburg Law and Economics Center, and the Brazilian Institute for Civil Liability Studies.

15. Prashanth Sugathan: An engineer turned lawyer, Prashanth is the Legal Director of the India-based Software Freedom Law Center. He works closely with the free software community and has been involved in many digital technologies-related litigation.

16. Jamila Venturini: Jamila a co-executive Director of the non-profit Derechos Digitales, where she coordinates the organization's efforts on artificial intelligence and inclusion in Latin America. She is one of the authors of the text "Automated Decisions in public functions in Latin America" (2021),